“Inside information” is defined in Section 1042A as information that is not generally available but, if the information were generally available, a reasonable person would expect it to have a material effect on the price or value of particular securities.

the insider knows, or ought reasonably to know, that:-

- (i) the information is not generally available; and

The following prohibitions apply:

(Section 1043A – the insider must not (whether as principal or agent);

- (b) procure another person to apply for, acquire or dispose of, or enter into any agreement to apply for, acquire or dispose of, any such securities.

(Section 1043A(2)) – the insider must not, directly or indirectly, communicate any information or cause the information to be communicated, to another person the insider knows, or ought reasonably to know, that the other person would or would be likely to:

- (b) procure a third person to apply for, acquire or dispose of or enter into an agreement to apply for, acquire or dispose of, any such securities.

In summary, any person who possesses inside information is required by the Corporations Act not to use that information to deal in securities, either for personal gain or for the gain of any other person.

Penalties for non-compliance are:

- $200,000 fine in the case of a natural person;
